

CETA & GRETA: XIV Encuentro Formativo para Profesorado de Inglés y ANLs

I can't think of a better thing to do on a sunny Saturday morning than hop on the train to Córdoba for the CETA & GRETA Teachers' Day on 12th May. Aside from the fact it's just 40 minutes from Puertollano, the event titled –“ Together, choosing our Active Teaching Paths” was of a very high standard indeed .

The opening talk by Russell Stannard set the tone, with his explanation of how technology can be used to communicate with our students in a different way. This was followed by simultaneous workshops in the two sessions before lunch, with a choice of three different workshops each time. Lunch was available in a nearby bar, a nice touch to this conference.

After lunch there were rotative talks, so the participants could go to two out of the three on offer and the final talk was about online safety , a topic of great interest to all schools and teachers.

All in all, it was a privilege to represent TESOL-SPAIN here, at such an enjoyable and well-organised conference, with really interesting speakers who I hope to see again.
