

Primary schools in Africa desperately need books and games for their classes.

A large part of Africa is anglophone and as a national association representing English Language teachers in France, TESOL France has decided to reach out to our colleagues in Africa and to concretely do something to help them.

We have thousands of books and games in our attics and classrooms which we don't use any more and want to send to primary schools in Africa.

We have linked up with our sister organisation, TESOL Spain, to ensure that we can bring together sufficient material to make a shipment worthwhile.

The success of the project lies in our privileged relationship with the continent-wide association of English language teachers in Africa – Africa TESOL. Africa TESOL was set up with the aim of bringing English Language Teaching Associations (ELTAs) in the continent together to share opportunities and challenges. Now, there are 16 affiliate countries that have bought into this vision. These are Angola, Botswana, Burkina Faso, Cameroon, Côte D'Ivoire, Egypt, Ethiopia, Mali, Nigeria, Senegal, Somalia, Sudan, Tanzania, Togo, Tunisia, and Uganda. These ELTAs have large membership bases as they serve as umbrella associations in their respective countries offering professional development opportunities to English teachers.

Africa TESOL can take delivery of any books and games we send and ensure equitable distribution to the teachers and schools in their respective countries thanks to their large membership base. They have selected the following countries for this project in 2018: Sudan, Senegal, Cameroon and Angola.

We can provide the books and games ; They have the teachers.

Can you help us with the shipping?

We are looking for help from aviation and maritime companies that serve these countries, as well as any other and who would be willing to sponsor this project by including a load of materials in one of their flights or sea transports.

If you think you could help please contact us in France at : president@tesolfrance.com or nikki@emacarena.com in Spain
